MODEL PRECINCT IS WIDE OPEN

Plain Clothes Policeman Murtha Forced by Jerome's Questions to Admit He Knows of Twenty Gambling Houses There.

UP TO M'ADOO TO MAKE COMPLETE INVESTIGATION.

Police Commissioner Refused to Act When the Existing Conditions Were Exposed by The Evening World.

The amazing spectacle was witnessed in the Court of Special Sessions to-day of a plain-clothes policeman attached to the West Forty-seventh street station, which is known as Hussy, the "model officer," testifying under pressure of District Attorney Jerome that in his precinct he knows personally of more than twenty gambling houses which are running full blast in direct violation of the law.

It was a disorderly-riot case and Mr. Jerome took charge of the prosecution. He went to Detective Murtha, of Capt. Hussy's staff, this way:

Q. You make a specialty of disorderly-house cases, don't you? A. I do as I'm told.

Q. Do you know of any gambling-houses in the precinct? A. I do.

Q. How many? A. Oh, probably twenty.

The District Attorney then forced Murtha to give several addresses. He called for Murtha's memorandum book and saw that it showed gambling-houses on Forty-third, Forty-fourth and Forty-sixth streets.

Why He Came In.

Then he explained to the Court: "You wonder why I came into this case, I know. It seems like an ordinary everyday case, but I was told by an intimate friend of my family that this woman was being persecuted by the police, and I felt that it was nothing more or less than my duty to come here personally and examine the policeman in the case, as my source of information was trustworthy. However, I find that the officers have done their full duty, and I owe it to them to say so and now I had feared that the police had framed up a case in the station-house against the woman for purposes of graft, as is sometimes done, but in this case I feel that I have done them an injustice."

The Evening World presented public evidence of wholesale gambling going on in this precinct some time ago. It was disregarded by both Capt. Hussy and Commissioner McAdoo. The latter contented himself with saying that Hussy, the man in control of this precinct, in which there are more gambling and disorderly houses than in any precinct in the city, was a model policeman and that he had the greatest confidence in him.

UP TO M'ADOO AGAIN.

But now the question has been put up to him again, and this time in a way that he cannot dodge. A regular member of the force, assigned to the precinct, has sworn that there are over twenty gambling places operating in his personal knowledge, and furthermore has given the addresses of most of them.

It wasn't pleasant for Policeman Murtha, the man in question, to tell these things and his very reluctance in testifying about them gives the stamp of truth to what he says. It was during the trial of a woman named Ella Belmont, for keeping a disorderly house, that Murtha was trapped into making the admissions that he did.

Murtha and another plain-clothes man named Gerlitz made a raid on the Belmont woman's house some time ago, and to-day she was called to trial. She claimed that her arrest was made for spite, and District Attorney Jerome was enough interested in her charge to summon into court while Murtha was on the stand and take a hand in questioning him.

ALTON B. PARKER GETS TWO JOBS

Ex-Judge Is Named on Commissions to Acquire Pier and Water Rights on East River for the City by Supreme Court.

PAY FOR WORK FROM $7,000 TO $10,000.

Justice O'Gorman Names Commission and Includes the Defeated Presidential Candidate, Who Had Just Visited Court.

Alton B. Parker got his first job as a practicing lawyer in this city this afternoon. It is worth $7,000 to $10,000.

Mr. Parker was appointed one of three Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment in the proceedings instituted by the city to acquire the wharfage rights appurtenant to old Pier 16 and 17, East River, and bulkhead rights not in possession of the city up to these piers.

Mr. Parker is also made one of the commission for similar duties regarding Piers 18 and 19. These piers are now held under leases for dumping purposes and the like, and these commissions are appointed in the work of carrying out the general scheme of improving the East River waterfront by the city.

Their work will consume a year or more.

Justice O'Gorman's associates as commissioners in the Piers 18 and 19 matter are Morris Herrmann and Charles P. Dillon. On the other commission his associates will be John F. Cowan, Tammany leader in the Twenty-fourth Assembly District, and Edward Cahill.

Mr. Parker took a look over the old Tweed court-house to-day. He smiled on friends right and left, and disappeared through the portals of the Justices' chamber, where he had luncheon with the Justices whose opinions he had been reviewing for the past seven years, and before whom as a plain lawyer he will appear in the future.

POLICE OFFICIALS ARE NOT GUILTY

No Guilty Knowledge of Pool-Room—It Would Be Folly to Dismiss, for Courts Would Reinstall Them.

Inspector Albertson, of the Bronx district, and Capt. Ferris, of the Bathing avenue station, were adjudged not guilty to-day of neglect of duty, for which they have been on trial. The judgment was rendered by Deputy Commissioner McAdoo, who presided at the trial, and Deputy Commissioner Lindbergh, who acted as prosecuting officer. In accordance with their recommendations, Police Commissioner McAdoo has dismissed the complaints against the accused policemen.

The charge was based upon a pool-room raid made in the Bronx by Sgt. Burke, of Commissioner McAdoo's personal staff. Seven prisoners were taken, and evidence to show that the place was a pool-room was secured. It was charged that Inspector Albertson and Capt. Ferris had neither reported the existence of the place nor taken any steps to suppress it and they were placed on trial.

The charges contained five specifications, one of them involving the making of misleading reports to the Police Commissioner. What testimony was adduced was in no way conclusive.

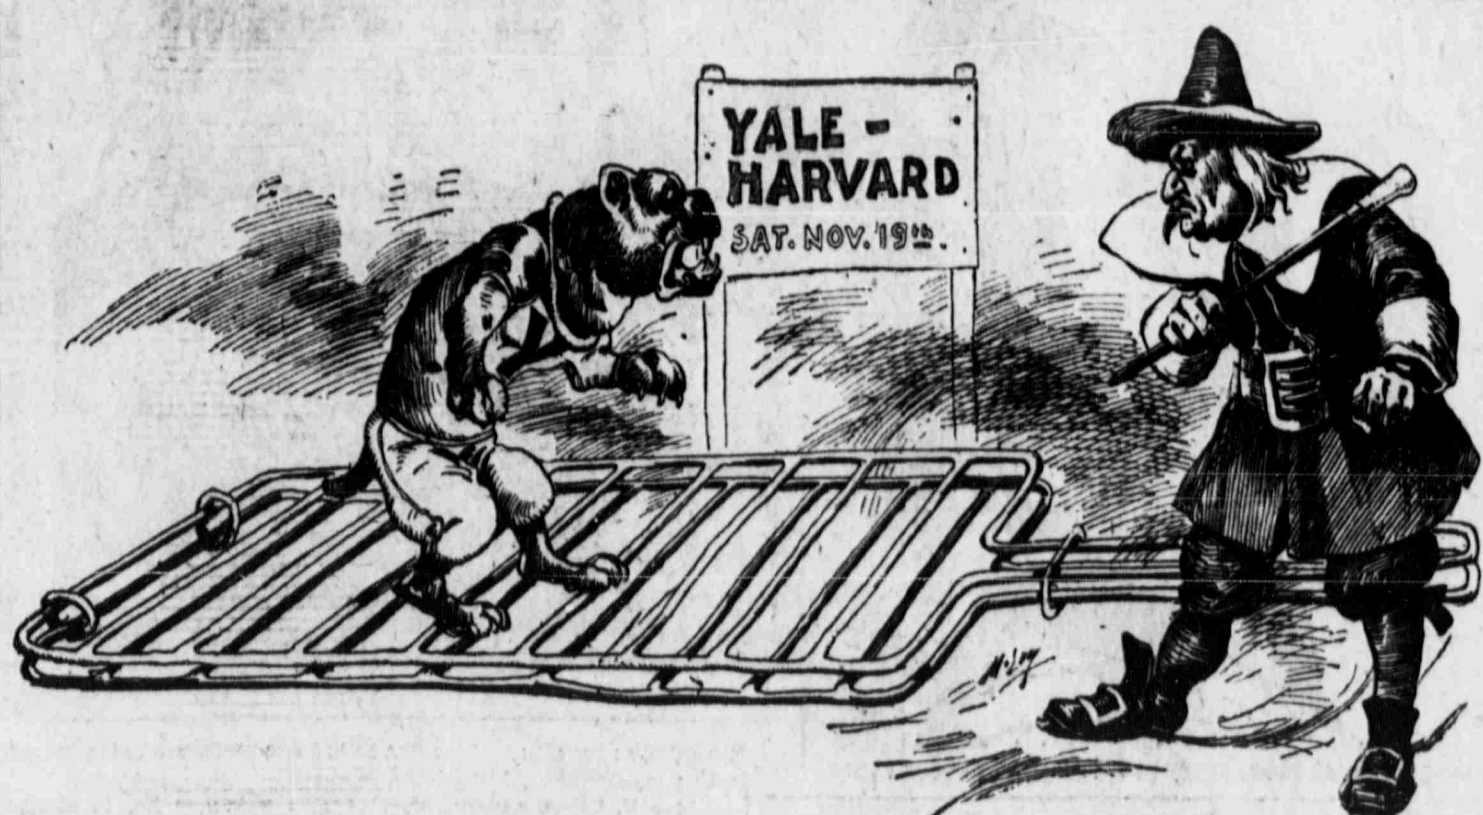

Deputy Commissioner McAdoo holds that there was no evidence to show that either the inspector or the captain had any guilty knowledge of the existence of the pool-room. Without absolute evidence of such guilty knowledge, he holds, there would be no use in dismissing the men, as the Court of appeals would undoubtedly restore them to the department with back pay.

(Special to The Evening World.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—Racing began at Benning this afternoon with a card a bit below the average of that seen in New York. All thoroughbred are great in the eyes of Washingtonians, however, so there was an excellent attendance. The weather conditions could not have been better, and the track was in fine shape.

The stake features were the Columbia Handicap, for all ages, at seven furlongs, which had the highest class field of the day, and the Bludenberg Steeplechase.

There was no dearth of horses at the course, all stalls being filled and many owners are paying extravagant prices for stable room near the track.

Racing started auspiciously. Mary Glenn, a 100 to 1 shot, won, but the decision was questionable, for Thistle Heather appeared to win. Thistle Heather was the favorite, but the goal time was Poseur, the mare who was responsible for the ruling of Fred Foster in the West.

Poseur rushed to the front in the first sixteenth and showed the way, with Thistle Heather to the stretch, followed by Mary Glenn and Foxey Kane.

In the run home Thistle Heather went to the front, and though Mary Glenn and Andrew Mack closed strong, Thistle Heather appeared to win by a good head.

The judges gave the race to Mary Glenn who had apparently beaten Andrew Mack a nose, but they separated these two and stuck Thistle Heather in between the two.

Chimney Sweep in a Drive.

Yeoman Corrier and Grand Duquesne were the horses met in favor of the stake in the second race, but Thistle Heather was also well backed. Limerick jumped away in front and was joined by Chimney Sweep and Courrier. These three raced in close order to the stretch, where Chimney Sweep went to the front and stayed there, winning in a drive by a length from Yeoman, who beat Limerick half a length.

NEW WITNESS SAW YOUNG KILL HIMSELF IN CAB

Archibald Anderson, Talesman in Nan Patterson Trial, Makes the Sensational Announcement that He Cannot Serve Because He Has Talked with Eye Witness of Tragedy.

GIVES THE NAME IN SECRET TO THE LAWYERS FOR THE DEFENSE.

Flordora Girl Forces One Man from the Jury Box by Insisting on a Challenge After He Had Been Accepted by the Attorneys on Each Side.

JURORS TO TRY NAN PATTERSON.

ELLWOOD HENDRICK, married, broker, of No. 25 Pine street; house, No. 139 East Forty-fourth street.
HARRY L. JOHNSON, married, dry goods, at No. 15 Thomas street; house No. 47 West Ninety-eighth street.
ROBERT HENRY, retired; house No. 477 West One Hundred and Forty-fifth street.
HARVEY J. UBERT, billiard-room proprietor, at No. 45 Broadway; house No. 143 West Forty-sixth street.
HARRIE S. LINES, real estate, No. 812 Lexington avenue; house No. 69 West One Hundred and Thirty-first street.
JOHN H. HAGGENBURG, lithographer, No. 2040 Seventh avenue.
JACOB J. GREEN, No. 76 West One Hundred and Thirtieth street; head of the Gem Skirt Company.

Nan Patterson's defense in her trial before Justice Vernon Davis on the charge of shooting Caesar Young while riding with him in a cab through West Broadway was aided in most sensational way this afternoon.

The helping hand was held out from the chair in which talesman called for examination as to their qualifications to act as jurors sit, while being questioned, and it was a talesman who inspired the Flordora girl with new hope. He is Archibald C. C. Anderson, a retired merchant, of No. 314 West Twenty-third street.

Mr. Anderson, who had been chosen one of the special panels of 100 talesmen, is fifty-eight years old. When he sat down in the witness chair and faced the prisoner he appeared nervous and fidgeted about. The first question Assistant District Attorney Rand put to him was: "Have you talked to anyone about this case?"

Instead of replying to the lawyer the talesman leaned toward Justice Davis and said that he knew of a person who had witnessed the tragedy, but who shrank from coming forward as a witness. Thereupon Mr. Anderson was excused and conducted to the rear of the courtroom by Daniel O'Reilly, one of the defendant's counsel.

After a brief conversation with Mr. Anderson Mr. O'Reilly said he had valuable information for the defense, and had promised to produce an eye-witness to the shooting of Young who could be thoroughly relied upon.

NEW STORY OF THE SHOOTING.

The story Mr. Anderson told Mr. O'Reilly is this: Shortly after the death of Caesar Young the old gentleman's son told him that there was a young woman employed by the concern he worked for whose brother had witnessed the shooting. Mr. Anderson had talked to this young man, and he had told a circumstantial story about the shooting, declaring that

"LIAR, CUR, SCOUNDREL," SAID MAGISTRATE HOGAN

An unlooked-for aftermath of the election occurred to-day in the Centre Street Court, when City Magistrate Hogan unexpectedly came face to face with Deputy Attorney-General Fuchs, who was attached to the office of Superintendent of Elections Morgan during the election and who was bitterly scorned by the Magistrate on account of the action taken by Morgan in regard to the challenge of voters. Magistrate Hogan was visiting Magistrate Cornell when the meeting took place.

"Were you correctly reported?" said Fuchs to Hogan, "when you criticized the action of the Election Superintendent?"

VAN COTT CASE KNOCKED OUT

Justice Dismisses Charge of Colonizing After Hearing All the Evidence the Prosecution Could Produce.

Richard Van Cott, son of the late Postmaster Van Cott, was acquitted this afternoon by Justice Wyatt in Special Sessions of the charge of aiding and abetting colonization of voters in the Fifth Assembly District prior to the recent election. The case collapsed through lack of evidence and also because of the character of the principal witness for the prosecution, Benjamin Levy, of No. 177 East Seventy-fourth street.

"The prosecution in this case has been very weak," said Justice Wyatt. "The principal witness is the man Levy, who admits he once pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny and another occasion to a charge of perjury. He also has admitted he is addicted to the use of opium."

"While there is no doubt in my mind there was colonizing in the Fifth Assembly District, still Attorney-General Collins has failed to connect this defendant with it."

"We must admit," said Deputy Attorney-General Collins, "that the strongest witness we had against Mr. Van Cott has disappeared, and—"

"I might well dismiss the charge now as later," said the Justice, and the order of dismissal was given.

"This comes," said Van Cott's attorney, "after all the charges have been made, after the arrest of my client caused his father's death."

In the trial to-day it was admitted that the slips given to the alleged colonizers were not, as had been charged, in the handwriting of Mr. Van Cott.
